

ABSTRACT

A polishing liquid composition is applicable as a means of forming embedded metal interconnections on a semiconductor substrate. In a surface to be polished comprising an insulating layer and a metal interconnection layer, the polishing liquid composition is capable of maintaining a polishing speed of the metal layer, of suppressing an etching speed, and of preventing dishing of the metal layer.